We have the great Russian poet and commentator on children's language, Korney Chukovsky, to thank in the first place for this captivating book. Based on his story, Mirra Ginsburg tells of a chick's emergence from 'a little house, white and smooth' and his first adventures in the farmyard. Preceded by an attractive vignette, the easy-to-read text is always placed on the left-hand side of each double spread and is cleverly linked to the opposite full page illustration by the sentence-completing phrase 'like this' which is contained within each bold, child-like picture.
