What can you say? --- this recommends itself. I can't even nit-pick; there are only a few signs of catch-the-Christmas-market haste. The punny title refers to a school camp which Tucker tries to skive out of (and fails), which Duane fancies as a first step to running away from his Dad (tough luck, Duane) and which Michael Doyle sees as a way of getting the school in lumber with the governors, using a set of 'compromising' photos (Penny Lewis saves the day). Slightly less jazzy than Rules OK!, it must be just as popular.
